THE DOG AND THE MOSQUITO

By Paul Terry. ✓

"What is sponge cake to one is sawdust to another," is the moral illustrated in the animated short subject, the mosquito being the sufferer and the dog being the mouth-piece of the moral. Needless to say, the mosquito is an advocate of short skirts and it is around the abbreviated costume that much of the humor is created. The dog incidentally plays a minor part but all to a good end because it results in the destruction of the pest.
